NEED 2000 MEN, SAY BUILDERS

Report of Plentiful Timber Disputed

SYDNEY, Monday.—Every day we had to line up twice for our call, after which we were forced to bow to Japanese. The children were forced all right until the last few weeks, when everybody almost starved to death. I suppose that's because the Japanese know they are beaten.

Painful Twinges

A VICTORIAN reader sent an affectionate letter to the Newcastle Morning Herald about the town he used to live in. He said that Newcastle was a lovely place to live, but the people were not as friendly as they used to be. He wished he could visit Newcastle again but had to settle for his memory of it.
