BID SULLIVAN V. WILL D'ALY

A DISAPPOINTING CONTEST

Tuesday night was put by as a night of considerable interest by the fact that the opposing stars, Sullivan and D'Ally, had both beenید in the absence of the usual sport's enthusiasm. Sullivan, who has been a regular visitor to the city, showed himself in good form, and was ready to do battle. D'Ally, on the other hand, was beaked and ready for a good show. Sullivan, who is known to be a keen competitor, was determined to give his best, and was well up to the mark. D'Ally, who is a good opponent, was not to be trifled with, and was determined to show his class. The contest was a hard-fought one, and the judges were engaged in a laborious task. Sullivan, who was the more active, was the more successful. D'Ally, who was the more skilful, was the more unfortunate. The judges, who were well satisfied with the two opponents, gave a decision in favor of Sullivan. The contest was a hard-fought one, and the judges were engaged in a laborious task.
