Helicopters lift out 21 Muslims

SARAJEVO An announcement SARAJEVO Both shells struck into the besieged Bosnian town of Sarajevo on Tuesday and killed a child, marking the second time in five days United Nations observers were killed. The shells struck its UN officials who were helping to evacuate the town. The shells were fired by Bosnian soldiers who were trying to escape from the Sarajevo airport to avoid being captured by Muslim troops. The shells struck a UN compound and killed two British helicopters and sent five United Nations observers to hospital, where two were killed and the other three were injured. The death of the two British helicopters was a major blow to the UN peacekeeping force in Bosnia, where the British have been on the front lines of the conflict.

Serbian leader not withdrawing

UNIVERSAL JUSTICE The leader of Bosnia's Serb-dominated Republic, General Radovan Karadzic, has rejected reports that he might be preparing to withdraw from the town. The Serbs have been under heavy pressure from the UN and the Muslim-led forces to pull out of the strategic city. The Serbs have been told that they must withdraw from the town to allow for a peaceful solution to the conflict.

Precious water, with precious little food

Refugee status granted on fear of ‘gender persecution’

LONDON Two years ago, a Serb activist woman who had been forced to leave her home was granted refugee status in the UK. The woman, who was a member of the lesbian community, had been persecuted in her home country and was forced to flee to the UK. She was granted refugee status on the basis of her fear of persecution and fear of violence because of her gender identity. The case has been used to highlight the issues of gender identity and violence against women in the UK.

Outgoing PM defending economic achievement

France's outgoing Prime Minister Michel Rocard has been defending his government's economic achievements in the run-up to the upcoming general election, which is expected to be held in April. Rocard has been trying to convince voters that his government has been successful in reducing unemployment and improving the economy.

Giscard outmanoeuvred

PARIS: France's outgoing President, François Mitterrand, has been outmanoeuvred by the new Prime Minister, Edouard Balladur, who has been in power for only three months. Balladur has managed to remove a number of Mitterrand's supporters from key positions in the government, and has been able to push through a number of policies that are popular with the electorate.

Numbers of pensioners on the rise

The number of pensioners in France has risen by 6% in the past year, according to new figures. The increase is due to the growing number of baby boomers reaching retirement age, and the aging population. The number of pensioners is expected to continue to rise in the coming years, and will put a strain on the pension system.

State of ‘semi-war’ lifted

TOKYO North Korea's official news agency, KNSA, has announced that the state of ‘semi-war’ between the two countries has been lifted. The announcement comes after a meeting between the two countries, and marks the end of a period of tension between the two nations.

New AIDS drug to be tested

WASHINGTON - A drug that stops HIV, the virus that causes AIDS, has been approved by the US Food and Drug Administration (FDA). The drug, called Tenofovir, is a new treatment for HIV infection, and is expected to be available in the next few months. The FDA has approved Tenofovir as a treatment for HIV infection, and it is expected to be available in the US later this year.

Radical whites vow revenge

Johannesburg Radical whites who had been excluded from the recent general election in South Africa said on Tuesday they would launch a campaign of violence against African National Congress (ANC) leaders. The whites, who have been living in the townships and have been excluded from the political process, said they would launch a campaign of violence against ANC leaders and supporters.

A day after a 5-year-old girl was found in a deserted village near Cape Town, she was buried in a mass grave on a farm near the village. The girl was said to have been murdered by a gang of white youths. The girl's body was found on a farm near the village, and it is believed that she was killed by a gang of white youths.

The Government has warned that it will not tolerate any violence against the government or its supporters. The Government has also said that it will not tolerate any violence against foreigners or their property.

A day after a 5-year-old girl was found in a deserted village near Cape Town, she was buried in a mass grave on a farm near the village. The girl was said to have been murdered by a gang of white youths. The girl's body was found on a farm near the village, and it is believed that she was killed by a gang of white youths.