SEEKING PEACE IN INDUSTRY

A committee established under the guidance of Sir Robert Menzies and the Australian Employers and Employees Federation (AE&EF) has been formed to investigate the possibility of negotiating a comprehensive code of conduct for the Australian industry. The committee, which includes representatives from the unions and employers, will be responsible for proposing a code that addresses issues such as working conditions, safety, and labor relations. The aim is to create a framework that promotes harmony and economic growth. If successful, the code will be implemented across the industry, potentially leading to improved working conditions and increased productivity.

In his recently published diary for 1952-49, the great French writer Andre Gide notes: "What France can exist must give to humanity the year which makes the middle course possible." He made this entry in September, 1942, when he was living in Paris and France was occupied by the Germans and its spirit in the shackles of Patain and Loval.

PRACTICAL DUTIES AWAIT NEW PARLIAMENT

Henry Sturt, the new member for Melbourne, has been appointed to the committee of supply. This is one of the most important roles in the Parliament, as it deals with the financial matters of the government and is responsible for preparing the budget for the coming year. The committee will work closely with the minister for finance to ensure that the budget meets the needs of the country while remaining within the limits of the government's financial capacity. It is a crucial role that requires careful consideration and a deep understanding of economic and fiscal policies.
