THE WEEK.

BRITISH NEWS.

The small birthday last was held by the Royalty on a fine sunny day. Wednesday, June 5, was appointed a public holiday. At 8 o'clock, the Prince of Wales took his seat in the Review Box at the Field of Dreams. He had addressed a large crowd of people at the Field of Dreams and opened the day's proceedings by addressing the people on the platform. The Prince of Wales then rode over the field on a horse, accompanied by the Duke of Edinburgh and the Marquess of Anglesey, and stopped to look at the horse. The Prince then rode back to the Review Box and took his seat. The Prince then rode over the field again, accompanied by the Duke of Edinburgh and the Marquess of Anglesey, and stopped to look at the horse. The Prince then rode back to the Review Box and took his seat.

A TERRIBLE BLOW TO THE RACE.

The news of the small birthday last was held by the Royalty on a fine sunny day. Wednesday, June 5, was appointed a public holiday. At 8 o'clock, the Prince of Wales took his seat in the Review Box at the Field of Dreams. He had addressed a large crowd of people at the Field of Dreams and opened the day's proceedings by addressing the people on the platform. The Prince of Wales then rode over the field on a horse, accompanied by the Duke of Edinburgh and the Marquess of Anglesey, and stopped to look at the horse. The Prince then rode back to the Review Box and took his seat. The Prince then rode over the field again, accompanied by the Duke of Edinburgh and the Marquess of Anglesey, and stopped to look at the horse. The Prince then rode back to the Review Box and took his seat.

A TERRIBLE BLOW TO THE RACE.

The news of the small birthday last was held by the Royalty on a fine sunny day. Wednesday, June 5, was appointed a public holiday. At 8 o'clock, the Prince of Wales took his seat in the Review Box at the Field of Dreams. He had addressed a large crowd of people at the Field of Dreams and opened the day's proceedings by addressing the people on the platform. The Prince of Wales then rode over the field on a horse, accompanied by the Duke of Edinburgh and the Marquess of Anglesey, and stopped to look at the horse. The Prince then rode back to the Review Box and took his seat. The Prince then rode over the field again, accompanied by the Duke of Edinburgh and the Marquess of Anglesey, and stopped to look at the horse. The Prince then rode back to the Review Box and took his seat.

A TERRIBLE BLOW TO THE RACE.

The news of the small birthday last was held by the Royalty on a fine sunny day. Wednesday, June 5, was appointed a public holiday. At 8 o'clock, the Prince of Wales took his seat in the Review Box at the Field of Dreams. He had addressed a large crowd of people at the Field of Dreams and opened the day's proceedings by addressing the people on the platform. The Prince of Wales then rode over the field on a horse, accompanied by the Duke of Edinburgh and the Marquess of Anglesey, and stopped to look at the horse. The Prince then rode back to the Review Box and took his seat. The Prince then rode over the field again, accompanied by the Duke of Edinburgh and the Marquess of Anglesey, and stopped to look at the horse. The Prince then rode back to the Review Box and took his seat.

A TERRIBLE BLOW TO THE RACE.

The news of the small birthday last was held by the Royalty on a fine sunny day. Wednesday, June 5, was appointed a public holiday. At 8 o'clock, the Prince of Wales took his seat in the Review Box at the Field of Dreams. He had addressed a large crowd of people at the Field of Dreams and opened the day's proceedings by addressing the people on the platform. The Prince of Wales then rode over the field on a horse, accompanied by the Duke of Edinburgh and the Marquess of Anglesey, and stopped to look at the horse. The Prince then rode back to the Review Box and took his seat. The Prince then rode over the field again, accompanied by the Duke of Edinburgh and the Marquess of Anglesey, and stopped to look at the horse. The Prince then rode back to the Review Box and took his seat.