SYDNEY: Moderate union leaders are planning counter-measures to crush any Communist-inspired attempt to disrupt industry at the coal face.

These leaders, who have been warned by significant points of the industrial centre, are merchanting with the threat of a general strike to the coal industry in Australia, and a so-called "pacific" action is being planned for a public dinner for the Communist party.

President of the N.S.W. Trades and Labour Council, Mr. D. O. Anderson, said that the "trump" admission substantiated the A.S.P. claim that the coal strike was a political conspiracy to cause strikes.

DASH IN VAIN

SYDNEY: A young woman who could not be admitted to two hospitals because of lack of beds, died in a third after a 127-mile dash in an ambulance.

She was Mrs. Heather L. Hadfield, 28, of Baradine, who was married five months ago. Mrs. Hadfield's husband is a wireless operator.

As there was no accommodation, the medical superintendent tried to arrange transport by a goods train, but it was too late to reach the hospital in time. The Hadfields then drove to Dubbo, but the girl died there after a 127-mile dash in an ambulance.
