TEXT OF HITLER'S VIOLENT BERLIN SPEECH

DEMAND FOR SUDETEN AREAS BY SATURDAY

"Last Territorial Claim In Europe"

INSULTS HEAPED ON CZECHS AND DEMOCRACIES

LONDON, September 26.

In his speech tonight on the Czech crisis Hitler announced that Czechoslovakia must give way over Sudeten territory on Saturday. The speech was made at Berlin, and it was broadcast throughout the world.

The opposition of Hitler was explained by the leaders of the British government. It was urged that the British government would not assent to such a demand, and that they would not assent to the demand by the British government.

Huge Crowds Assemble

To-day the German army marched into Prague, and troops were on the march in the streets. The crowds were cheering, and they were singing the national anthem.

Boost Of Best Arms

"We have not won this war," said Hitler in his speech, "but we have not been defeated. We have not been defeated by the people of Czechoslovakia, and we are determined to win.

The people of the United States are determined to win this war. We are determined to win it for the cause of peace and democracy.

To-day, in the presence of the German army, the British government declared that it would not assent to the demand for the Sudeten territory.

"We have not won this war," said Hitler, "but we have not been defeated. We are determined to win this war.
