Dartmoor Legacy

Published by Special Arrangement

Copyright

Principal Characters

Robert Bridges, a member of the Dartmoor crew, describes his experiences aboard the AIF troopship ENEWORRA, and the many events that shaped his life during the war. The story is a reflection of the broader experiences of the AIF in World War II, and provides a glimpse into the lives of soldiers who served in the Australian military during this time.

CHAPTER 1

A Shot on the Moor

By Robert Bridges

As the ship made its way across the ocean, the crew encountered various challenges and experiences. The tale begins with a shot fired by one of the soldiers, who was involved in a near-miss incident with a German submarine. The story then takes a dramatic turn as the ship is forced to face the realities of war.

ANZAC TROOPSHIP MEMORIES

WHEN A.I.F. WENT ABROAD

When the 2nd A.I.F. embarked, many soldiers found themselves on ships that were not built for war. The story of ENEWORRA, and the men who served aboard her, provides a unique perspective on the challenges faced by the AIF during this period.

Penguin News

Broadcasting Programme for Today

What Goes in the Stew

A Parody in A.I.F. Paper

Advice on Preparing Correspondence for Overseas

National Library of Australia