THE ARNDELLS—A HISTORIC HAWKESBURY FAMILY.

BY MARY SALMON.

The Arndells—A Historic Hawkesbury Family.

Mr. Thomas Arndell, son of Dr. T. Arndell, of the Mosels Fleet.

James and A. Arndell at work on the mill and brake, Cattai Farm.

The Arndells, at one time, were among the most influential and powerful among the settlers of the Hawkesbury district. They were closely associated with the early history of the area and played a significant role in the development of the Hawkesbury region.

By the 1780s, the Arndell family had established itself in the Hawkesbury district, and their influence continued to grow over the years. The Arndells were involved in various aspects of life, including farming, law, and politics.

The Arndell family was noted for their generous and philanthropic acts. They were known for their role in supporting the local community and for their contributions to various initiatives.

In 1813, the Arndells were granted land in the Hawkesbury district, and they continued to expand their estate over the years. The estate included several farms, including the famous Cattai Farm, which was one of the largest and most successful farms in the area.

The Arndells were also involved in politics, with several family members serving in various capacities. The family's influence and power continued to grow, and they were regarded as one of the most powerful families in the Hawkesbury district.

The Arndell family was known for their philanthropic acts, and they were actively involved in supporting the local community. They were also noted for their role in the development of the region, and their legacy continues to be remembered in the Hawkesbury district to this day.