FALLS ON THE NIAGARA CREEK, MOUNT TOBRESS.—[FROM A PHOTOGRAPH BY C. WALKER.]

FALLS ON THE NIAGARA CREEK, MOUNT TOBRESS. —[FROM A PHOTOGRAPH BY C. WALKER.]

Mount Ross is one of the peaks of the Great Dividing Range, as seen from the far Plate. It is within five or six miles distance from the town of Blandford, and gradually slopes off to the river, which runs through the town. The view is taken from near a house which was formerly known as Cameron's Hotel, and from the road from Blandford to Fornahow, and the Black Spur.

The following telegram was received from Sydney concerning the attempted assassination of H.R.H. Prince Alfred—

The Duke of Edinburgh.

Sydney, 18th March.

The wharf at Sydney was alive this morning at an early hour. Immense crowds gathered, and gradually made off to the house of the Prince's House in the Pall Mall, which used to be known as Cameron's Hotel. The view is taken from near a house which was formerly known as Cameron's Hotel, and from the road from Blandford to Fornahow, and the Black Spur.

Mount Ross is one of the peaks of the Great Dividing Range, as seen from the far Plate. It is within five or six miles distance from the town of Blandford, and gradually slopes off to the river, which runs through the town. The view is taken from near a house which was formerly known as Cameron's Hotel, and from the road from Blandford to Fornahow, and the Black Spur.

The following telegram was received from Sydney concerning the attempted assassination of H.R.H. Prince Alfred—

The Duke of Edinburgh.

Sydney, 18th March.

The wharf at Sydney was alive this morning at an early hour. Immense crowds gathered, and gradually made off to the house of the Prince's House in the Pall Mall, which used to be known as Cameron's Hotel. The view is taken from near a house which was formerly known as Cameron's Hotel, and from the road from Blandford to Fornahow, and the Black Spur.

Mount Ross is one of the peaks of the Great Dividing Range, as seen from the far Plate. It is within five or six miles distance from the town of Blandford, and gradually slopes off to the river, which runs through the town. The view is taken from near a house which was formerly known as Cameron's Hotel, and from the road from Blandford to Fornahow, and the Black Spur.

Mount Ross is one of the peaks of the Great Dividing Range, as seen from the far Plate. It is within five or six miles distance from the town of Blandford, and gradually slopes off to the river, which runs through the town. The view is taken from near a house which was formerly known as Cameron's Hotel, and from the road from Blandford to Fornahow, and the Black Spur.