MONSOON ENDS FIRST PHASE IN BURMA
Substantial Allied Gains

From GEORGE JOHNSTON, "The Argus" Special Staff Correspondent with Allied Advance Forces in North Burma.

SUNDAY

With monsoon rains already soaking Ceylon and Burma, and the ground in Bangladesh and India now occurring almost every day of the week, the situation in the SE Asia Command is nearing an end.

For many commanders of this war has already been an unfolding of Allied forces in the Burma front. The front line has moved south, with the monsoon rains and the terrain, from the Yunnan Region to the lower Irrawaddy Valley.

On Monday, the Allied forces moved into the Chindwin Valley, with the aim of capturing the city of Mandalay. This move has been made possible by the advance of the British forces into the Chindwin Valley, which has enabled the Allied forces to move south into the Mandalay area.

The Allied forces have also made significant gains in the eastern part of the Burma front, where the British forces have advanced into the region of the Rangoon area.
