Death of Dowie.

A NOTABLE IMPRINT.

The late Alfred Dowie, founder in Eton City yesterday, had been in failing health for some time. He began to suffer on Friday, and died on the same day. He had not been reconciled to his wife and son, from whom he was parted by a sudden separation.

The press declares that Dowie was the most spectacular athletic advance in the world. He was a fine specimen of the old Scotch type, and in his best days could run with the best of them. The news is likely to cause a great deal of excitement, as Dowie was considered one of the foremost of his type in the world.
