DEATH AT WAGIN

As previously reported in these columns, the death occurred at Wanganella (80 miles) of Sr. Charles Conway, and it is feared a few weeks as a result of the accident which occurred on Saturday night at 9 p.m., in connection with the accident to the Sulphur Mine at Wanganella, the mine owned by the Consolidated Sulphur Co. Scarcely any man in the state was more widely known than Sr. Charles Conway, a skilled miner and a man of much character, who had greatly contributed to the welfare of the town.

The late Sr. Conway, who was nearly 70 years of age, was one of the original miners on the Western Front. He was a man of great force and was a member of the local council. His death is a great loss to the town, and his passing is a great loss to the mining industry.

Army Weapons in Action
A Large Crowd at Waterfront

The crowds at the Waterfront on Sunday were the largest ever seen, the number of people being estimated at more than 50,000. The display of military hardware was impressive and included tanks, aircraft, and artillery. The event was organized by the Government of Western Australia, and the public was invited to attend free of charge. The event was a success, and the government announced plans for similar events in the future.
