LOUISA ANNE MEREDITH

A REMARKABLE WOMAN

(By MARGARET SWANS)

In the year 1813, there appeared in London a little volume bearing on its title-page the name of "Mrs. Meredith," in which was contained a "Journal of Travels in the interior of Australia,

During and after the period of the Napoleonic Wars," written by Mrs. Meredith, as the result of her travel in various parts of the Australian continent. This book was published under the auspices of the National Library of Australia, and is now available for reading online.

The book contains a number of illustrations and drawings, as well as written accounts of the author's travels. The illustrations include maps, plans, and photographs of various locations in the Australian continent. The written accounts provide detailed descriptions of the author's experiences, including her encounters with local people and customs.

The book is divided into several sections, each focusing on a particular region of Australia. These sections include accounts of her travels to New South Wales, Victoria, South Australia, and Western Australia. The book also contains a number of appendices, including a list of the author's acquaintances and a glossary of Australian terms.

This book is an important historical document, providing valuable insights into the experiences of early European explorers and settlers in Australia. It is a valuable resource for anyone interested in the history of Australia and the experiences of early explorers and settlers.
