Trove Collaborative Services Terms and Conditions

Purpose of Terms and Conditions

These Terms and Conditions become part of a Trove Collaborative Services Agreement (TCSA) between the National Library of Australia (NLA) and the Trove Partner upon the parties executing a Trove Collaborative Services Order Form.

Recitals

- A. The NLA provides Australian libraries, cultural and research institutions with a range of digital services and access to various online platforms, which currently include Trove Collaborative Services and various digitisation, content access and web archiving services. These services have been covered by a range of different agreements to date.
- B. As these platforms and services evolve they are becoming increasingly interconnected and dependent on essential shared infrastructure, namely, the Trove content, access and delivery platform.
- C. Accordingly, the parties recognised the need for a new collaborative framework for delivery and development of NLA's digital services, which allowed for a new consolidated fee structure and increased consultation with Trove Partners under the Trove Collaborative Services Partnership Agreement 2019 – 2022.
- D. The Trove Collaborative Services suite of Services continues to evolve and expand due to industry demands and as such the definition of Trove Partner has expanded to include organisations that contribute to and benefit from the Trove content, access and delivery platform.
- E. The Trove Collaborative Services Partnership Agreement beginning July 2022 is an ongoing agreement with automatic annual renewal unless otherwise notified in writing by either the NLA or the Trove Partner.
- F. Under this agreement, the NLA offers Trove Partners a range of services in relation to its digital platforms and tools such as Trove, and optional digitisation services at a Trove Partner rate. All material that is contributed to the NLA, or created, by the Trove Partner under this agreement will form part of the national collection.
- G. The parties agree to adopt this partnership framework, which will replace the existing range of agreements, on the terms and conditions set out in this Trove Collaborative Services Agreement.
